

FOREWORD

The Elders Helpline is completing two years of meaningful performance. It has been rendering valuable service to the senior citizens who have come under considerable stress due to the compulsion to live without the support of their near and dear. In the absence of a special law it has further become very difficult for them to get their right and they have become victims of the greed of others.

On the occasion of their second anniversary, I am glad, they are bringing out a Directory focusing on the role of homes for the aged. This is sure to be very helpful to those seeking institutional care.

I congratulate the Helpline on its achievements and call upon the general public to extend a helping hand to it

S. MARISWAMY IPS
Commissioner of Police,
Bangalore City.

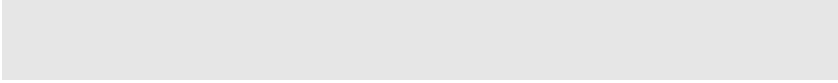

Date: 8th April 2004

Please note

All information contained in this Directory has been furnished by Managements of the respective Old Age Homes. Elders Helpline (EHL) has merely collated such information to provide a list of Old Age Homes to intending users.

Senior Citizens are requested to independently satisfy themselves of the accuracy of information furnished by the Managements. EHL does not vouch for or guarantee the accuracy of the information furnished by Managements of Old Age Homes.

A few Homes that have not responded have not been listed herein.

I am happy to know that Elders Helpline is celebrating its second anniversary on 17th April 2004.

As a joint project of Bangalore City Police Nightingales Medical Trust, the services rendered by the Helpline to elders in distress are really commendable.

In Addition to providing relief to day to day problems faced by elders, it is good that the Helpline is identifying the different issues affecting elders and is creating the necessary awareness.

The Directory on Old Age Homes to be released, I hope, will be very useful to elders in need. I am sure, the growth and performance of the Helpline over the past two years are indicative of how best an NGO and a Government Department could associate and work together for a social cause.

My best wishes to Elders Helpline for a bright future.

D. THANGARAJ, IAS
Principal Secretary to Government,
Woman & Child Development Department,
Govt. of Karnataka.

Introduction

Elders Helpline is a joint project of Bangalore City Police and Nightingales Medical Trust. Elders in distress and helpless are given prompt and reliable support by way of intervention, counselling, resolving disputes, reconciliation, rehabilitation, legal advice, police action, tracing of missing elders, advocacy, creating awareness and so on.

Providing authentic information to elders is also one of the services. As quite a number of elders are seeking information and guidance on Old Age Homes, the need for an updated and comprehensive directory on Old Age Homes in and around Bangalore is felt to be necessary.

Through press notifications and personal visits, information on different aspects of Old Age Homes has been carefully collected by Elders Helpline. We are thankful to the managements of Homes who have willingly and readily cooperated with us.

The efforts of Mrs. Uma Murthy, a devoted volunteer in identifying, contacting and visiting the Homes, collecting and classifying the data is very commendable. Mr. Uttappa's involvement also is very laudable.

We also appreciate the professional advice and guidance given by Mr. Shiv Kumar, the legal advisor to the Helpline. It will be very valuable and useful to elders for taking decisions.

The release of this directory is part of the celebration of the second anniversary of Elders Helpline in ensuring elders a life of dignity, security and fulfilment. It is sure to be a useful guide to elders seeking Old Age Home.

We also thank HelpAge India and all those who have encouraged and supported this effort financially and otherwise.

8th April 2004

ELDERS HELPLINE

Hello Senior Citizens!
Are you depressed? Harassed?
Abused? Exploited? Insecure?
Distressed?

Do you feel helpless?

Today elders life span is prolonging. Fast change is the hall mark of present day life style. Joint families that ensure a secured life for the aged are fast disintegrating. As a result, most elders are left alone. They face exploitation, abuse and desertion. With none to live with and care for them, elders have to look for an alterative home for security, companionship, care and a life of dignity.

In the West, care system for elders are well defined. Institutions for elders are well organised and state controlled. But here in India, we are yet to go a long way in ensuring an effective support system for the growing number of elders. Yet, as the need arises, Old Age Homes (OAH), though a new concept to us, are coming up in large numbers today.

Soon after Elders Helpline was started, senior citizens started enquiring about OAHs. It was felt necessary to personally assess the OAH facilities and we started visiting them. This triggered a chain of activities resulting in the publication of this directory. Visits made to around fifty five OAHs, interaction with the residents, the staff and the management provided great insight into the living conditions, facilities and services, essential requirements and also the problems faced by managements. The Elders Helpline has so far guided many OAH seekers to places suitable for them.

Some Homes offer free services. Some are on pay and stay basis. Many Homes are well established and well managed with good facilities and services. Caregivers are devoted and service minded. Residents are well treated and taken care of. All the same, there are a few homes that do not keep up the promises and are sub standard.

While the number of elders seeking OAHs is increasing, the causes vary. In most cases they are exploited and abandoned by ungrateful children. Some children are unable to keep their aged parents with them for unavoidable reasons. Whatever the reason, for the aged who cannot be independent and fend for themselves, an OAH is the best alternative.

But such elders need a lot of mental preparation. They should bear in mind that even the best OAH cannot be a right substitute for their own home and family. The best is to continue to live with or under the direct care of their children in spite of differences and difficulties. There are cases where elders are too demanding and fault finding. They do not understand and adapt themselves to the present day circumstances their children are in. Children should also never consider their aged parents a burden and desert them.

When entering an OAH really becomes inevitable and unavoidable, as it is a lifetime issue, extreme caution is required in taking a final decision in choosing a Home. Studies reveal that even the best facilities and services available may not be up to your expectations and satisfying for long. You must be emotionally prepared for a totally new life with changed environment, food habits, restrictive rules and regulations.

For a satisfying life in an OAH, one should always keep in mind that the trustworthiness and stability of the management and its commitment to provide for the physical, emotional and social needs of the residents until the last are to be preferred to the physical features of the Home, other attractions and promises.

We do hope that OAHs listed here are committed to elders welfare and are ensuring a life of joy, dignity and hope by providing the best possible facilities and services.

Elders Helpline wish all elders a happy and fulfilling life.

Convenor – Old Age Home Services

Elders Helpline

If you are considering moving into an Old Age Home:

1. Obtain a list of Old Age Homes from an NGO or from the Yellow Pages of the Telephone Directory or from Newspaper advertisements
2. Collect specific data / information from each of them, regarding:
 - † Location
 - † Nature of accommodation – whether single rooms, dormitories
 - † Facilities that are offered
 - † Costs, expenses, charges to be paid including deposits, donations
 - † Access to medical facilities
 - † Arrangements for food
 - † Access to public transport system
 - † Reputation of service provider in the locality
3. Shortlist a few Old Age Homes for considering, based on assessment of your needs / affordability
4. Personally visit each of the Homes you have short listed to evaluate them. During such visits:
 - † Insist upon interacting with or meeting the service provider and not merely the Manager, or other staff
 - † Inspect the entire premises where the Home is located
 - † If there are residents, talk to them about their experience in the Home. Wherever possible ensure that the staff of the Home are not present during your interaction with residents

- † Critically examine the facilities available and determine if they are adequate and operational. For example, one 14" TV located in one room for 20 – 30 residents, beaming only DD channels would be wholly inadequate, even though it would technically amount to providing a TV
- † Obtain information regarding attitudes and commitment of the staff of the Home. Evaluate their approach to the residents, responses to their needs and their willingness to help
- † Do not be carried away by promises that may be made by service provider regarding facilities, amenities, standard of concern and care etc., Insist upon written commitments
- † Carefully examine all documents that you are required to sign like Application Form, Terms and Conditions, Applicable Rules, Restrictions imposes etc
- † Verify whether you are required to pay a refundable or non-refundable deposit or a donation or a monthly fee or charge. Obtain accurate information regarding fixed costs and recurring costs. Confirm whether this information has been recorded in the documents
- † Do not sign any papers without carefully studying and understanding their contents. Do not sign any blank papers
- † Make enquiries regarding restrictions imposed during your stay. Determine whether the routine prescribed by the Home is suitable for you. Obtain information on entertaining visitors

5. Do not decide upon joining the Home on the spot. Take time to evaluate the merits of each Home before you decide. Choose the one that suits your emotional, physical and financial needs
6. As far as possible choose a Home that offers you communication facilities as otherwise you will be at the mercy of the service provider
7. Do not keep valuables, jewellery or large amounts of cash at the Home, unless you have verified the security arrangements. View with suspicion any Home that insists upon cash payments. Obtain receipts for all payments
8. Leave clear and unambiguous instructions regarding the person/s to be informed when you are sick or ill
